"Giving"

Giving to others who make a difference in our community is an act of kindness. Our First Responders throughout our nation truly made the ultimate sacrifice that we will always be grateful for. The many lives that they saved, the many families they gave comfort to, will be remembered.

Many businesses and organizations came together during the pandemic from 2020 through 2022 to honor the work of First Responders, and their commitment to our communities. Women United for Autism (WUFA) was one of those organizations. We collaborated with Williams Sonoma and provided over 200 "Thank You" mugs to First Responders. We also provided self-care packages to the heroes who gave of themselves and made an impact on our communities.
